1 By, Md. Asif Iqbal Fahim

To train our detector we take the following steps:

- Install YOLOv5 dependencies
- Download custom YOLOv5 object detection data
- Write our YOLOv5 Training configuration
- Run YOLOv5 training
- Evaluate YOLOv5 performance
- Visualize YOLOv5 training data
- Run YOLOv5 inference on test images
- Export saved YOLOv5 weights for future inference

2 Install Dependencies

(Remember to choose GPU in Runtime if not already selected. Runtime --> Change Runtime Type --> Hardware accelerator --> GPU)

3 Define Model Configuration and Architecture

We will write a yaml script that defines the parameters for our model like the number of classes, anchors, and each layer.

You do not need to edit these cells, but you may.

%cd /content/yolov5/data/

4 Train Custom YOLOv5 Detector

4.0.1 Next, we'll fire off training!

Here, we are able to pass a number of arguments: - img: define input image size - batch: determine batch size - epochs: define the number of training epochs. (Note: often, 3000+ are common here!) - data: set the path to our yaml file - cfg: specify our model configuration - weights: specify a custom path to weights. (Note: you can download weights from the Ultralytics Google Drive folder) - name: result names - nosave: only save the final checkpoint - cache: cache images for faster training

4.1 Evaluate Custom YOLOv5 Detector Performance

Training losses and performance metrics are saved to Tensorboard and also to a logfile defined above with the `--name` flag when we train. In our case, we named this `yolov5s_results`. (If given no name, it defaults to `results.txt`.) The results file is plotted as a png after training completes.

Note from Glenn: Partially completed `results.txt` files can be plotted with from utils.utils import plot_results; plot_results().

[ ]: # Start tensorboard
Launch after you have started training
logs save in the folder "runs"
%load_ext tensorboard
%tensorboard --logdir runs
